JLPT

JLPT stands for Japanese-Language Proficiency Test. There are five levels for it. N5 is the easiest and N1 is the hardest. The test is scheduled for December 3rd at York University this year. The test in Toronto is held during December every year and the registration starts in September. The registration for this year has already finished, but how about preparing for the test next year now? I have the course material for JLPT. If you are interested in it, please let me know.

うんどうかい

うんどうかい is a P.E. festival. We usually have うんどうかい in the fall as a school event. (Recently, it has been held in May instead of fall.) Students dance or race and so on. This is one of the biggest events in the school curriculum. Teachers spend a lot of time teaching dance and students have P.E. class every day during this period. This is a big event for parents too. Many parents work as volunteers on that day and some of them spend time preparing for it. Student's families come to school and stay there for a half day, so there are so many people there.

おしらせ

- We'll do class on Thanksgiving Day to skip Monday Christmas.
- Introduce a friend and receive a free lesson!
